SUMMARY

Summary (based on whitepaper)

Ethereum is an open platform that enables developers to build and deploy decentralized applications, Ethereum allows participants to run decentralized blockchain applications called smart contracts! Smart contracts are highly secure and run with a perfect digital history making them auditable since these smart contracts can be programmed without any chance of downtime censorship or fraud. The Ethereum blockchain and smart contracts form a shared global supercomputer that can move/send value across the world, represent ownership & transmit tokenized assets and digitize many more complex financial applications. This allows developers to create many things all without a middleman and all immutable much like what the internet did for information, Ethereum has the power to open up the financial system to the world and build a safer more accessible and fair economy for everyone to participate in.. Other projects like OmiseGo are now building on top of Ethereum, using this as a parent chain and providing scaling solutions such as Plasma to really push the boundaries of what is currently possible with Ethereum, other such projects like Raiden are also important in the long run as they allow transaction speeds to ramp up, whilst there are ... read more
